CONSTANTINE J. ALLEYNE

LIFE & CAREER

Constantine J. Alleyne, hailed as the "Queen of the Pivot," embodies resilience and determination in every facet of her vibrant journey. With over two decades of experience as a former prison health services administrator and a distinguished career as a Senior Manager at Pratt & Whitney, Constantine's commitment to empowering professional women is a force that transcends limitations. Her multifaceted expertise extends to her role as the Founder and Board Chair of the Civilian Corrections Academy, where she spearheads transformative reforms within the corrections system. Constantine's magnetic energy resonates through captivating guest lectures, dynamic webinars, and expert panels at renowned small business and correctional conferences, inspiring others to break free from limiting mental constructs and pivot confidently towards their dreams.

Constantine's narrative isn't confined to boardrooms or lectures; it's woven into literary gems like "The Cage Was Her Cocoon," a profound account of her transformation from a prison administrator to an entrepreneur. Her upcoming releases, "Mommy Please Don't Let Me Die Here" and "Kendall's Diabetes Adventure," along with the caregiving journal "Caregiver's Corner," illuminate courage and hope. Beyond accolades like the National Honors Society and her invitation to the Connecticut Small Business Advisory Council, Constantine's recognition among the Top 100 Women Leaders of Connecticut 2022 by Women We Admire reflects her indomitable spirit and trailblazing leadership.

Constantine defies categorization, radiating wisdom and expertise wherever she steps, setting the tone with her unparalleled credibility and business acumen. She embodies empowerment and transformation, inspiring change in every sphere she touches.
